An expenditure that is merely beneficial to the general health of an individual is not a deductible expenditure for medical care. Similarly, expenditures that would have been incurred for non-medical reasons cannot be deducted as medical expenses.

Amounts paid for the following items do not constitute deductible medical expenses:

- Aspirin
- Auto insurance
- Ballroom dance lessons recommended by the taxpayer's doctor as a form of therapy for arthritis and to alleviate nervous tension but not proximately related to the taxpayer's medical care
- Bottled water
- Child care, even if the expense is necessary in order for the taxpayer to receive medical or dental treatment
- Cosmetics
- Cosmetic surgery that is directed at improving the taxpayer's appearance and does not meaningfully promote the proper function of the body or prevent or treat an illness or disease
- Hair removal for cosmetic reasons
- Cruise ship travel that is not undertaken primarily for and essential to the taxpayer's medical care, even if the trip is beneficial to the taxpayer's general health and well-being
- Diaper service for normal babies
